Consumers need a champion. And that's just what we are. We influence policy and practice at European and international levels as well as across the UK. We run effective media and public affairs campaigns to make sure consumers get a fair deal. Areas we focus on include public services, failing markets, legal rights and redress as well as vulnerable consumers. We have a particular interest in the energy and postal sectors.

We have an exciting and persuasive story to tell on behalf of consumers. You'll make sure the right people hear it.

Your brief is to get the consumer's voice across. Working at a senior level in a fast-moving environment, you will have a flair for turning complex policy into hard-hitting news. An expert media operator, you will bring energy, a creative and flexible approach and sound judgement.

If you are committed to championing the consumer cause and have the skills and experience to thrive in this key role, we would like to hear from you.
